

Libratone returns to the audio market

New headphones from the Danish company will be announced on September 22, 2021

Copenhagen, September 1st 2021: Libratone, the audio company founded in Denmark in 2009, today announces its return to the German market while also announcing plans to unveil new headphones in September 2021.

Libratone is back and continuing its #Freethesound mission with the goal of further expanding its position as a manufacturer of wireless audio products. The premium brand is considered a global pioneer in wireless speakers as well as headphones and has received numerous awards for outstanding design and sound quality since its inception.

Most recently in 2019, Libratone had already set new standards in terms of design, range of features and high-quality audio with the TRACK Air+ true wireless in-ear headphones with smart noise cancellation. Libratone is launching new headphones before the end of September to continue this ambition.

"We are incredibly excited to delight our German audio fans with new products in the headphone segment later this month and can't wait to unveil our new member of the Libratone product family. Those who are aware of Libratone know that nothing is more important to us than living up to our own #freethesound claim and delivering premium audio experiences. We are convinced that we have succeeded in doing so with the upcoming headphones," said Michael Spitaler, Account Director at Libratone.

More details on the upcoming product portfolio, availabilities and pricing will be announced September 22, 2021.
